Dr. S. Warren Saxton, a widely known practicing physician, 1208 Ridge avenue, Steubenville, died at Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh, Wednesday, May 16th at 2:15 a. m.

Dr. Saxton's ill health started six years ago, but he recovered to some extent then he began failing in September 1933, and his decline was gradual until his death. The final cause of his death was uremic poisoning, arising from chronic nephritis.

He was born September 28, 1878 at Florence, Pa., the son of Samuel S., and Margaret Melvin Saxton, both deceased. His family on both sides were early settlers there and he came of Ulster-Scottish ancestry.

Following his common school course he entered Frankfort, Pa., Academy, and later Jefferson Medical school at Philadelphia, graduating in medicine in 1903. He was first an interne at West Penn hospital in Pittsburgh. Beginning in 1904 he practiced medicine at Burgettstown, Pa., for thirteen years.

In 1917 he came to Steubenville and has enjoyed a large practice since locating here. In the World war he enlisted and was made a first lieutenant in the U. S. Medical corps, with the 26th Field Artillery. He saw professional service practice in various camps.

At a camp in Alabama when the influenza broke out he had 600 cases under his charge at one time and did not lose a single case. He was a member of the Second United Presbyterian church, of the American Legion, the Jefferson County Medical association and the American Medical association.

He was married to Irene McCracken at Florence, Pa., November 16, 1904. His widow and one brother Lawrence Saxton of Burgettstown survive.

Dr. Saxton was a Christian gentleman, not only in his profession, but in every walk of life. He was a man of pleasing personality, of integrity of life, a man who enjoyed his home life, a fine type of citizen.

All who came within the scope of his medical practice found him cheerful in the sick room, a master of his profession and all such will feel they have lost a friend who was full of sympathy and ever interested in their welfare. His death in the prime of life will be a matter of regret to all who knew him.

Rev. J. K. Leitch, officiated at impressive services for Dr. S. Warren Saxton at the Second United Presbyterian church, Saturday at 2 p. m. The services were largely attended. Miss Margaret Paisley sang. The interment was at Florence, Pa.

Up to late Friday night 1000 persons had called to pay their final reverential respects at the home where the body of the late physician was laid out in the parlor, massed about with floral emblems.

The honorary pallbearers were from the Jefferson Medical association; from Argonne Post which included Past Commanders, E. C. Peter, Marshall Francis and Earl Powell, also William Probert, John MacGregor, John Peterson, C. W. Stouch, George Barthold.

The active pallbearers were Frank Lyons, R. G. Porter, F. S. Grace, Dr. J. E. Gamble, Jay Sweeney, Edward Carlisle.

At the grave the military salute was given by a firing squad from Ambulance Corps No. 131.—Steubenville Herald.

Dr. Warren S. Saxton

The death of Dr. Warren S. Saxton, of Steubenville, O., a native and for many years a practicing physician in the local community, occurred in the Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh, early Wednesday morning of last week following an illness of some duration of complications. He was aged 57 years. Funeral services were held from Steubenville Saturday afternoon. Burial was in the Florence cemetery. Dr. Saxton was a veteran of the World War, serving in the Medical Corps of the 26th Field Artillery. He was born in Hanover township and was a son of the late Samuel and Margaret Melvin Saxton, well known citizens of Hanover township. He spent his early life in that section. He received his education at the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, and following his graduation he began practicing in Burgettstown. About 15 years ago he moved to Steubenville where he had continued his practice of medicine. He was united in marriage to Rena McCracken, who survives. TOWN LOSS IS SUFFERED IN OLD CITIZEN'S DEATH

Venerable "Squire Bill" Shillito
Passes Away in Home of Son
Following Brief Illness

Residents of Burgettstown, old and young, mourn the passing of one of the town's most prominent and venerated citizens, William Galbraith Shillito, whose death occurred in the home of his son S. Reed Shillito, on Thursday, May 3rd.

"Squire Bill," as he was affectionately known to multitudes, was 84 years old, and up to a couple of weeks preceding his death had been as active as men in early middle life. As seen about town only a short time before his passing, Mr. Shillito appeared to be in the best of health. To many his death came as a distinct shock, and to all it means the end of a life which had been devoted to the welfare of the community and the county.

At the time of Mr. Shillito's death he was serving as a justice of the peace in Burgettstown, and had held the office for several terms. It is said of him that as a justice he settled more cases in his own office than he ever sent to court, and that his policy was to make peace between antagonists and send them home happy.

He was a member of the First United Presbyterian church of Burgettstown, and was prominent in all other affairs of his town and community. He was an active member of the Union Agricultural Association, which conducts the annual Burgettstown Fair, and for many years was superintendent of the cemetery in which he was buried.

Mr. Shillito was a member of the Board of County Commissioners under whose direction the present courthouse was built. He was elected in 1896, and began his first term in January, 1897. Three years later he was reelected, and retired from the commissioners' office in January, 1903.

He leaves two sons, S. Reed Shillito, at whose home he died, and James P. Shillito, both of Burgettstown.

Funeral services were held in the home of his son, S. Reed Shillito, 63 Highland avenue, Burgettstown, Saturday afternoon. Interment was in Fairview cemetery.

Was on Mellon Jury.

Squire W. G. Shillito, who passed away here last week, had been named as a member of the Federal Grand Jury which on Monday took up the Government tax charges against Andrew W. Mellon, in Federal Court at Pittsburgh. The list of Jurors was not published until after Mr. Shillito's death.

Death of an Estimable Woman.

Mrs. Martha Simmons died at her residence, in Cross Creek Village, Pa., on Tuesday morning of last week, of dropsy, in her 78th year. Her suffering was great; but her Christian resignation and patience amidst all her trials was apparent to every one who entered her sick room. She was constantly surrounded by her daughters, who with loving hearts and tender hands did all they could to comfort the aged one in her sickness. It is scarcely necessary to say the dread messenger found her ready and waiting. Friends and neighbors gathered to pay the last respects to the dead were surprised and delighted to hear the voice of the Rev. E. R. Donehoo, of Pittsburg, who came to be present at the burial of a friend and neighbor and to bear witness to her Christian character. He spoke of her as "one whom he esteemed highly—one who always had a smile and a kind word for him and all others." Her pastor, the Rev. W. H. McCaughey, spoke of the deceased as having a bright hope and a loving trust. Both speakers were listened to with the stillness and awe that become such a place. Four daughters who have the sympathy of the community, remain to mourn her death.

Riddle V. Smith.

Supplementing the data contained in the news report of the accident which on May 1st resulted in the loss of the life of Riddle V. Smith of Maple avenue, the following details are added: Mr. Smith was born in Burgettstown on January 18, 1873, and spent his entire life in the town. On May 6, 1903 he was united in marriage to Belle Falconer of Burgettstown. A son was born of this union. Leroy, who died June 14, 1921, in his 17th year. Mr. Smith was a man of estimable character and quiet disposition and spent most of his leisure time at home with his family. He and his wife had planned for a quiet celebration of their 28th wedding anniversary to be observed on May 6th, only five days away at the time of the tragic fatality which ended his life.

OLD TOWN RESIDENT MEETS TRAGIC DEATH

Maple Avenue Man Loses Life in Fall Beneath Cars at Local Colliery

Riddle V. Smith, aged 59 years, of Maple avenue met almost instant death at 11:10 o'clock Friday morning of last week when he fell under a moving railroad car at the Francis mine tipple of the Greensburg-Connelville Coal & Coke Co. where he was employed as a car dropper. Added to the tragic conditions surrounding the accident was the terrible mutilation of the unfortunate man's body.

Details concerning the tragedy are meager. There seems to have been no witnesses to the accident, and only by conjecture is any explanation arrived at. It seems Mr. Smith had cut two railroad cars from a number standing above the tipple and had dropped the two down to a point where it is customary to drop bottom doors to clear the bottom of refuse accumulation.

After these cars had been stopped, 15 other empty cars started from some unknown cause, running down and bumping into the two cars that had been separated from them. The bump is supposed to have knocked Mr. Smith through the bottom of the car, the drop door of which was open. Several cars ran over his body.

The accident was one the most unique, as well as shocking, which ever has occurred in the local district. The man had been employed at the mine for about 27 years and was fully experienced in his work. The several peculiar circumstances which entered into the consumation of the fatality are beyond possible estimation.

Mr. Smith was born in Burgettstown, the son of the late John and Sarah Jane Smith, and lived here all his life. He was a member of the First Presbyterian church and was held in high regard by his neighbors and his employers and associates. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Belle Falconer Smith, and the following brothers and sisters: Andrew, William and Charles Smith of Burgettstown; Mrs. Frank Lutz, Slovan; Mrs. Harry McClain, Canonsburg and Mrs. J. F. Fredericks, Burgettstown.

Funeral services, largely attended by sorrowing friends, were held in the home on Sunday afternoon by the Rev. R. E. Carman, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Interment was made in Fairview cemetery.

Largely attended funeral services for Sanford W. Smith were held at his late home with the Rev. J. L. Weaver, Jr., officiating. Burial was in Oak Hill cemetery.

Sanford W. Smith was born in Towanda on October 2, 1889, and died February 10. His early years were spent in this locality after which he moved to Philadelphia where he received his education. He was a graduate of Girard College in the department of mining engineering and followed that profession after his graduation. Working his way up, he finally attained the position of assistant superintendent for the Carnegie Coal Co., one of the largest concerns of its kind in the world. Five years ago he became afflicted with a dread disease and finally succumbed.

Mr. Smith was a man of sterling Christian character, a firm believer in the tenets of the Christian religion, and a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Towanda. During his long illness his faith never wavered and he was able to maintain to the very last moment a cheerfulness which was a never failing source of wonderment to his friends. He was possessed of a most lovable disposition and made friends readily wherever he went. He maintained a keen interest in the affairs of the outside world even though he was confined to his bed for several years. When at last the call came, he was ready and willing to go and went to meet his Maker with a smile upon his lips. He will be sadly missed by his loved ones and his friends but his memory will ever remain green within their hearts.

"But when the sun in all his state
Illumined the eastern skies
He passed through Glory's morning
gate
To walk in Paradise,"

STEPHENSON—June 18, at the residence of her son, William O. Stephenson, in Smith township, of cancer, Mrs. Sarah Curry Stephenson, widow of Oliver Stephenson, in her eighty-third year.

Death, in whatever form it comes to the human family, strikes the heart with sorrow and anguish, especially when it is the beloved mother who receives the summons. The heart, the mind—nay, all our feelings, our thoughts and our energies—are crushed by the removal of her who administered to the comforts of every child. Hence a mother's love can never, never die. The poet has truthfully said:

From the moment her infant's have drawn their first breath
To the time that she closes her eyelids in death,
Joy or in sorrow, whatever be their lot,
In sickness they are never forgot.
Wife, husband and father, or sister and brother,
May love, but they never can love as a Mother.

Throughout Mrs. Stephenson's entire life morality and the Christian religion were the thoughts of her joyous mind, and never did she doubt the truths of the Christian religion. But with an abiding faith in her Redeemer, she lived a Christian's life and died a Christian's death. To this we may truthfully add that kindness and love were the predominant traits of her character, and throughout her entire life she cultivated these Christian virtues which secured to her the love and esteem of all relatives, friends and acquaintances. She has gone to her God, her Savior, her husband, her daughters Isabella and Sarah, and her son Oliver, who were near and dear to her, and we should never, never forget that she peacefully and calmly entered her eternal home, where every sorrow and every pain is ended and where every tear is wiped away forever. No grief, no sorrow, or care disturbs her peace or her beloved husband and their departed children who have been accepted by the Lord.

Then to all surviving friends and relatives a voice comes from the heavenly throne saying, "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." "Peace be still." Time is bearing each of us to that same eternal home, where we shall meet our loved ones, through the redemption of Christ, if we have lived and died in the Christian faith.

1803-June 18, 1885

Death of Mrs. Stephenson.

The death of Mrs. Sarah Curry Stephenson, of Smith township, is elsewhere announced in this paper. About 5 o'clock last Thursday morning, after a long and painful illness from cancer, she quietly passed away to her heavenly home, leaving an aching void in many hearts who knew her well and loved her. She was noted for her hospitality and kindness, more especially to the young people of that region, all of whom speak of her with great tenderness. Her funeral, on Saturday last, was one of the largest ever seen in that section. A singular feature of the funeral was that six ladies who had known the deceased well acted as pall-bearers. The interment took place at Cross Creek Village.

On Saturday, September 13th at 1:00 p.m. at the Burgettstown Community Library, Steve Loborec, Vice President of the Ft. Vance Historical Society, will give a program on the history of the one room school house, and discuss several of the one room schoolhouses that were in the area.

Commonplace throughout rural portions of many countries in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, several notable figures, including U.S. President Herbert Hoover and writers Joyce Carol Oates and Laura Ingalls Wilder, attended one room schoolhouses. At these schoolhouses, a single teacher taught academic basics to several grade levels of elementary-age boys and girls.

A typical school day lasted from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., with morning and afternoon recesses of fifteen minutes each and an hour period for lunch. The teachers in one-room schools were often former students themselves. Many of these teachers were women, as women at the time received 1/3 of the salary that men did. The quality of facilities at one-room schools varied with local economic conditions, but generally, the number of children at each grade level would vary with local populations. Most of the one room school buildings were of simple frame construction. The teacher's residence, also known as a teacherage, was sometimes attached to the school, or located very close by.

Transportation for children who lived too far to walk to school was often provided by horse-drawn kid hack, the pre-motorized precursor to the modern school bus, which could only travel a limited distance in a reasonable amount of time each morning and evening. Other students might ride a horse. Oftentimes, there would be a pasture in an adjoining paddock where the horses were kept during the school day. Motorized school buses came about in the 1920's, which made longer distance travel easier. In more recent times, students rode bicycles.

The school house was the center and focus for thousands of rural communities, hamlets and small towns. Often, town meetings and picnics were also held there.

By World War II, most one room schools were consolidated into larger, multiple classroom schools where classes could be held separately for various grade levels. The vast majority of one-room schools in the United States are no longer used as schools and have either been torn down or converted for other purposes. However, in some rural communities, including among the Amish, one-room or two-room schools are still used, primarily for elementary education, with students graduating to local or regional middle and high schools.

A few of the local one room schools that will be discussed include the Dillo, Purdy, Paris, Hamilton, Coventry, and Beech Knob schoolhouses.

Mary Freshwater Swartzwelder

Injuries she received when she was struck by an automobile on Route 8, about two miles north of Harrisville, caused the death of Mrs. Mary Swartzwelder, 52, in the Grove City Hospital Tuesday afternoon of last week. Mrs. Swartzwelder, wife of Samuel Swartzwelder, was crossing the highway to her home from a mailbox on October 18th as automobiles were approaching from either direction. According to the highway patrol report, she walked against an automobile driven by Stanley Nash, of Franklin. The woman suffered a fractured pelvis, severe lacerations of the head, and internal injuries. She was taken to the Grove City Hospital in an ambulance from Harrisville. While her injuries at that time were not regarded as critical, it was found that she suffered serious internal injuries. TOWN BANKER'S DEATH GREAT COMMUNITY LOSS

People of Entire Countryside Are Saddened by Passing of Old and Esteemed Neighbor

Although well past 83 years of age and his death had not been unexpected, the passing of James Buchanan Taylor, president of the Washington National Bank of Burgettstown, at his home near town at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, September 4th, caused a wave of sorrow which extended over the entire countryside. Due to early issue last week, the Enterprise was unable to carry more than a brief announcement of the death of Mr. Taylor.

He passed away on the old farm homestead where he was born, the date of his birth having been March 30, 1851, and he had resided on the old place during his long life. In his fullness of years he had lived a life of constant activity and usefulness to his community. He was a man of careful business method, but fair, square and upright in all his dealings. By industry and careful management he had accumulated possessions of considerable value.

He was elected president of the local banking institution June 22, 1923, and had given much of his time to the affairs of the bank up until but a short time preceding his demise. Among his associates he was familiarly known as "Jim" Taylor and was held in high regard by associates, neighbors and friends. He also was the president of the Oakdale Mutual Insurance Co. and was identified with other interests.

The Burgettstown Enterprise management has particular reason for sorrow in the death of one who was a real friend. Mr. Taylor frequently went "out of his way" to direct business to the paper and on many occasions furnished material for many of the interesting historical articles the paper has from time to time published. He was familiar with the history of Burgettstown from times away remote, and had in his possession many valuable documents bearing on the early history of the community. The editor called upon him many times for assistance in locating obscure dates and events.

Deceased was one of a family of six sons and two daughters of David S. and Sarah Oliver Taylor. Of this family only one now survives, Miss Jane Oliver Taylor, with whom J. B. made his home.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. R. E. Carman, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in the late home on Friday afternoon and interment was made in Fairview cemetery. The funeral was largely attended. As a mark of respect the Washington National Bank was closed during the afternoon.

Miss Taylor died at the home of her nephew Stewart P. Cook of Kenmore, N. Y., with whom she resided on Sunday, January 21, of an acute heart attack. She had been active until shortly before her death.

She was born on February 22, 1845 near Washington, Pa. and was the daughter of D. D. and Sara Oliver Taylor. In 1850, Miss Taylor moved with her family to the farm in Smith township, where she had resided until the death of her brother, J. B. Taylor in 1934. Recent years she had lived with Stewart Cook.

Dr. John P. Taylor of McDonald is a surviving nephew.

Thompson Funeral Will Be Held Friday

Burgettstown friends were shocked to hear of the tragedy on Tuesday morning that took the lives of a young couple well known here. Lois Cooley Thompson, 25, Burgettstown high school graduate in 1936 and sister of Mrs. John Figley was almost instantly killed by bullets from a 22 cal. rifle fired by her mentally ill husband, Edward Thompson, 26. Mr. Thompson then used the same weapon to take his own life.

The bodies of the young couple may be viewed at the Moody Funeral Home in Clinton until Friday at 2 o'clock, when a double funeral service will be held in the Hebron Presbyterian church, conducted by Rev. C. G. Neale. Burial will be in Hebron Cemetery.

The shooting occurred at an early hour at their home near Clinton and is believed to have resulted after an argument. Mrs. Thompson fled from the house after attempting to take the weapon from her husband. She was shot in the back and fell in the snow in her yard, as she tried to reach a neighbor's house. Thompson, shot in the right temple, apparently sat on the floor and fired the trigger with his toe.

The couple's only child, Kay 4, was not at home at the time the shooting occurred. She had spent the night with her aunt, Mrs. Ruth Cool of Clinton.

Mrs. Thomas is survived by her daughter, and her mother, Mrs. Bertha Cooley of Houston, formerly of Burgettstown; three sisters, Mrs. Figley, Mrs. Mary Dickson of Pittsburgh and Mrs. Ruth Cool of Clinton.

She was born in Hanover township and was the daughter of Mrs. Bertha Riggle Cooley and the late Robert Clarence Cooley.

Mr. Thompson was born and lived at Follansbee during his youth and at one time worked in the Follansbee Mill. He was a graduate of Follansbee High school. Of recent years the couple had lived at Marland Heights, where they owned their own home and Mr. Thompson was employed at Weirton Steel Mill.

Last year they sold their home and disposed of their furniture because Mr. Thompson had passed the physical examination and was expecting to be called until a change in the draft laws removed him from the eligible list. Worry over his draft status is thought to have affected his mind. Just before Christmas he spent two weeks in a sanitorium near Columbus, O., where his mother now resides. Shortly after Christmas, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson came to Burgettstown and had spent last week at the Figley home, taking care of the Figley children while Mrs. Thompson's sister, Mrs. John Figley was a patient at the Washington hospital. They had gone to their home near Clinton last Friday.

He is survived by his father Edward Thomson of Follansbee, his mother, Mrs. McGregor of Columbus, O., and one brother, George recently returned to California from foreign service in the Army. George is flying home for the funeral.

DEATH OF OLD DOCTOR ENDS FAMOUS CAREER

West Alexander Physician Answers
Last Call After Operation
In Wheeling Hospital

Thousands of Washington County people heard with feelings of the most heartfelt regret of the passing of Dr. Joseph M. Timmons of West Alexander, who died in the Ohio Valley General Hospital at Wheeling on Saturday afternoon of last week. His death followed a mastoid operation which was undertaken in the hope of further prolonging a life that had been long and full of good works. He was aged 63 years.

Doctor Timmons was the last of the "old-fashioned" country doctors of the Ohio Valley section. For nearly 40 years he had pursued his way, ministering to the sick and serving mankind in a fashion that endeared him to the people of a large area, which included Burgettsown. Up to the end of his long and successful medical practice he continued to use a horse and buggy in traveling any distance. He never could be induced to change the old methods of transportation for the modern vehicle represented by the motor machine.

He was a graduate of Wooster College and Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, and was an honored member of the Washington County Medical Society for many years. He was a native of Tarentum, but spent the major portion of his life in the West Alexander community. Much of the medicine he used was prepared by himself, employing many well known medicinal roots and herbs found in the hills near his home.

He is survived by his widow, three sisters and two brothers. Funeral services were held in his late home on Tuesday afternoon and interment made at West Alexander.

SMALL GIRL LOSES LIFE WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Seven-Year Old Daughter of Local Pharmacist Killed by Car
On Street Near School

Death struck a terrifying blow in the community about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon of last week when the life of little Norene Trimmer, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Trimmer of Elm street was sacrificed on the public highway near the local grade school building as the child was on her way home from her school work of the day.

The little girl was with a group of other children and it appears they were expecting to ride home in an automobile, and for that purpose had entered the street on Center avenue near the West Penn Power Co. sub station. As the victim of the terrible catastrophe passed around the car she had expected to board she was struck by a motor vehicle driven by Henry Vega, aged 19 years, of Langeloth.

Vega, it appears, made every effort to bring his machine to a stop and avoid colliding with the child, but was unsuccessful. Following the impact, the little girl was carried into the home of Raymond Pack, near by, and physicians hastily summoned. Upon the arrival of the medical men the child was dead, and it is assumed she was killed almost instantly.

The driver was arrested by Chief of Police J. E. Dowden and was given a hearing before W. G. Shillito, local Justice of the Peace. The man was held under bonds of $1,000 for investigation by the county coroner on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Funeral services were conducted in the First United Presbyterian church Saturday afternoon and interment made in Fairview cemetery, the funeral being largely attended.
